The test cases brought in Police Court by the Anti-Saloon League, through the corporation counsel's office, against a number of saloonkeepers said to be operating in violation of the excise law were temporarily laid aside by Judge Mulowny yesterday when he announced that no more cases would be heard until the District Court of Appeals renders a decision in the Metropolitan Club case. The announcement brought to an abrupt termination the hearing on a demurrer filed in the case against the Marks Hotel.

BOARDMAN WILL DIVIDE ESTATE

Philanthropist Bequeaths $10,000 to Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation

WIDOW GIVEN CITY HOME

Miss Mabel Boardman Shares in Property—William Henry Boardman Large Benefactor.

The will of William J. Boardman, philanthropist, who died August 2, leaves his widow, Mrs. Florence S. Boardman, $5,000 for her immediate use, a life interest in the home at 1801 P street northwest, and in the property owned by him in the square bounded by Fifteenth and Sixteenth, R and S streets. The will was filed for probate late yesterday.

In addition, the widow is given all automobiles, carriages, and all the personal effects of the testator, with the exception of an old "Tobias watch," which is bequeathed to a grandson, William Jarvis Boardman. The watch will now pass into the fourth generation, having been the property of the grandfather of the testator.

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation is bequeathed $10,000 as an endowment for the upkeep of the cathedral. The Citizens' Savings and Trust Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, is left a half interest in improved real estate in that city, to be held in trust for a son, William Henry Boardman. At his death it is to go to his four children. John Wilson, a servant, is to receive $500 if still in the employ of the family.

Estate is Subdivided.

The remainder of the estate is to be divided into six equal shares. Two of these shares go to the widow; one to each of three daughters, Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Mrs. Florence S. Boardman, and Mrs. Josephine P. Crane. The sixth share is to be held in trust by the Citizens' Savings and Trust Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, for the son, William Henry Boardman. The will is dated January 10, 1910.

A codicil, dated January 23, 1914, gives Miss Mabel T. Boardman, his daughter, and head of the American Red Cross, a life interest in the home at 1801 P street northwest, and also in the property owned by the testator in the square bounded by Fifteenth and Sixteenth, R and S streets northwest, subject to the life interest given her mother in the will.

D. C. NOW TESTS TAXI METERS WITHOUT FEE

New Rules Say Companies Must Refund Money to Passenger When Register Is Out of Order.

Regulations governing the installation and testing of taximeters yesterday were approved by the Public Utilities Commission, to become effective September 1. Under the rules, if a passenger in a taxicab suspects the meter of having registered incorrectly, he can demand that it be tested by the commission free of expense to him. If it is found that the meter is out of adjustment, the taxicab company will be compelled to refund the passenger's money.

Under the regulations originally drawn up, a fee of 50 cents was to be charged for testing each meter, but this provision was eliminated upon the protest of John H. Sherman, District superintendent of weights, measures and markets, who maintained that the charging of a fee would tend to discourage the testing of incorrect meters.

The little German bands have become strangely numerous on the streets of the metropolis, playing with cyclonic power "Die Wacht am Rhein." The melody strains and strains, and the sound of the bugles or the sound of the drums is heard in the air.

From messenger to manager in three years—and only seventeen. It sounds like a passage from J. A. Flenty, but it is the history of Alphonse O'Neill since he joined the staff of the Western Union at Montclair. The lad has just been appointed manager at Beacon Falls, Conn. While he was carrying messages he learned telegraphy and he went to the main offices the other week and told them he was ready for a manager'ship. He told such a convincing story that after being put through the tests he was appointed.

Automobiles have the names of many of the city streets changed. They argue that much in the present nomenclature is confusing. A humorist suggests that Park Road be changed to Spark Road, Fourth Avenue to Ford Avenue and Riverside Drive to Filverside Drive.

If the young lady had come from Oyster Bay the dance would probably have been a clam schottische. Her name is Marie Wallace and dressed in the reigning Broadway style she was brought before Magistrate Reynolds. The waiting officer was asked the trouble.

"She was doing a Rose Dance at Fulton street," he replied.

"Where do you live, Marie?" asked the magistrate.

"Carnation avenue," was the reply.

"Where is that?"

"Where is that?"

"Where is that?"

Salmon Pack Short.

Seward, Alaska, Aug. 10.—Poor year for salmon packers with a falling off from 50 to 60 per cent of a full pack was reported here today by Capt. Hansen of the steamer Santa, which has arrived from Bering sea ports. The Bristol bay canneries, according to Hansen, lacked 40 per cent of their usual pack while at Kodiak, Tyak, Seldovia, and Port Graham the season closed with only half a pack. A full pack, however, is expected from Chignik and Port Muller.

"How should I know," I parried, running my brain at top speed in an effort to find a solution for the dilemma.

"There were many people all around me."

"That's an easy way to get out of it. Robert—at least you think so. But I'll have you understand that it doesn't impress me at all."

"What do you mean?" I questioned in an even tones as, under the circumstances, I could muster.

"I mean that you've got the film picture and some woman mixed up."

"I have not," I denied, and I was talking so foolishly. I didn't think when I asked you to go over and see that picture that I should be compelled to endure this sort of thing."

"Endure what sort of thing?" I broke in.

"What is the reason for such talk?"

"Nothing," she replied, her mood changing.

"I felt that it was better to let matters take their course, and was about to do so when Myra began to cry. Of course, this hurt me, and inasmuch as I had really made a fool of myself, I sought to patch up as best possible, the trouble I had caused."

"Myra," I conciliated, "don't cry. I'm sorry."

"But, Robert, what did you mean by 'three seats away'?"

"I meant, dear, that the confounded usher had put me three seats or rows from the front, and I couldn't get as good a view of the picture as I would have liked."

"That little old man arrived just on time."

"Doubt, however, looked large in Myra's face, and I produced myself that in future I would be more careful."

WHEN A MAN IS MARRIED

BY ONE WHO IS

The Photo-Play and the Girl.

In a moving picture theater I watched Walter White show how the melting pot of America boils down the raw material from European shores into more raw material for money barons of this land of liberty to exploit.

Their somehow, my attention was diverted, and I stared blankly at a girl, several seats away. I didn't intend to be braced, but the girl was what Laura Jean Libbey would call a beauty. She saw my look of entranced concentration and smiled sweetly, and then, of course, being a husband, I woke up.

In the evening I told Myra what a wonderful film drama I had seen, and how it impressed me with a sense of my glorious privilege to work and watch those who have work seek those who have not. Myra had been to see the picture, and I had gone to the theater at her request.

"Walker Whitehead certainly is a wonderful man," she said.

"I agree with you," returned Myra, interested, as she should have been.

"Such wonderful eyes—and they smiled. She said: 'What are you talking about?'"

"In the massess scene back there in darkest Russia, wasn't he splendid, Robert?" She was enthusiastic.

"And that look of scorn he handed the baron," I added. "Those pretty, tapering hands."

"The baron was a mean wretch," commented Myra.

"But Vera was a dandy. Myra—why, she was three or four seats away."

"Robert!" There was anger in the tone. "What are you talking about?"

"I came to myself with a jerk, as I realized the danger which threatened."

"Why—er, I am talking about Walkerhead—and all that you know."
